

Client Notice Draft

This draft notice will be sent to a customer affected by a rollout delay. The page preserves the rough spacing that the account team has been using.

Project context: the delayed package includes both the reconciled data feed and the revised regional mapping file. The customer has already received one earlier estimate.

The supplier missed two promised dates again and sent another incomplete package, so we cannot rely on the timeline they gave us.

Requested change is intentionally local: only the tone of the blunt paragraph needs to be adjusted, while the overall meaning should remain intact.

A separate style inconsistency remains in the document on purpose.
